RUSSIANS REGAIN OFFENSIVE

Pennsylvania Flood Toll Climbs to 30

PROBE DEBRIS IN SEARCH OF MORE VICTIMS

Lackawaxen River Rages Through 17 Counties as Dam Breaks.

WAR PRODUCTION HIT

Property Damage Expected To Total More Than $10,000,000.

(By International News Service)

HONESDALE, Pa. — With 30 identified dead and conflicting reports placing the total as high as 42, emergency crews today took control of the devastated eastern Pennsylvania flood sections and began the grim job of cleaning up and searching debris for any additional victims.

Property damage in the valley areas of the Lackawaxen, Lackawa'n'n'a, Scuylkill, Susquehanna and Lehigh rivers and their tributaries was expected to mount over the $10,000,000 figure.

Hardest hit was the Honesdale-Hawley section of Wayne county, where 21 of the known dead were recovered. Three miles above Honesdale, the swirling Lackawaxen river burst through the Seeleyville dam and then raced down through the valley, lightly tossing aside huge steel bridges, demolishing homes and leaving 2,000 of the town's 5,600 population without dwelling places. Although Hawley is only eight miles away, a detour of 85 miles was necessary to get there from Honesdale.

For the first time in its history, the giant, four-mile-long Bethlehem Steel company plant was forced to suspend operations because of the flooded Lehigh. As the river receeded, however, emergency workers from Johnstown and Pittsburgh rushed to get the machinery back into production and it was expected the entire plant would be roaring again tomorrow.

War production in the entire area was hard hit as the gushing

'HEIL' VICTIMS

Nazi Sub Crew Salutes American Seamen After Sinking.

KEY WEST, Fla. —(U.P.)— The crew of a German submarine hoisted the Nazi swastika and "heiled Hitler" after they had torpedoed a small American merchantman in the Caribbean, survivors said today.

Six men, including Capt. Charles D. Bryant, of Houston, Tex., were lost with the vessel, which sank two minutes after the torpedo penetrated her starboard side May 18. Twenty-eight survivors were rescued by a Latvian steamer after drifting 20 hours in two life-boats and were landed here.

"Immediately after our ship slid under, the sub surfaced and raised the Nazi flag," Third Assistant Engineer Leonard Shearer of New Castle, Pa., said. "The sailor then turned and gave the Nazi salute to some of us who were swimming nearby.

Nipponese Say 5,000-ton Vessel Struck Mine Near Harbor.

TOKYO—(By Official Japanese Wireless) — (INS) — The Japanese liner Nagasaki Maru was sunk when it struck a mine outside Nagasaki harbor, it was officially disclosed today.

The 5,268-ton vessel sank May 13, the announcement said. The vessel, launched in 1922, was on the Kobe-Shanghai run before outbreak of the war. She was a sister ship of the Shanghai Maru.

ARMY SILENT

Declines to Explain Why West Coast Buses Were Chartered.

LOS ANGELES — (INS) — Bus schedules returned to normal today after army authorities chartered virtually all coaches of the Santa Fe and Greyhound bus lines in the Southern California area for an 8-hour period yesterday.

Army officials declined to explain their action. Bus company officials emphasized that the vehicles "had been rented, not commandeered" by the government.

HITLER'S LAST "ACE-IN-THE-HOLE": A PINCER DRIVE ON BAKU

Unless reverses suffered at Kharkov upset the plans of the German high command, Adolf Hitler is expected to embark upon one of the most ambitious ventures in military history. His objective will be Baku and its rich oil fields which produce one-tenth of the world's supply. This map shows the directions his drive will take according to competent military experts.

SEES LOWERING OF DRAFT AGE

Hershey Declares Induction of Youths 18 and 19 'An Inevitable Step.'

(By United Press)

BOSTON — Mar.-Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national selective service director, said in an interview today that the drafting of youths 18 and 19 years old for military service is "probably an inevitable step."

Hershey said that his board had not yet requested the lowering of age requirements but added that "we never have got through a war without going down to 18."

The interview followed Hershey's arrival from Washington and preceded a military breakfast in his honor by state selective service officials headed by the state director, Brig.-Gen. Edgar C. Erickson. Tonight General Hershey speaks extemporaneously before the institute for war problems at Harvard university.

Discussing published reports from Washington that congress soon might be asked to lower the minimum age for compulsory service to 19 or possibly 18, Hershey said:

"I know of no request by selective service officials to lower the draft age."

Police Own Use Of Sugar, Bailey Tells Consumers

A warning to Richland county residents to "police their own use of sugar" if they had an excess amount on hand at the time of the recent registration was issued today by James Bailey, county rationing administrator.

At the present time, Bailey said, no family or individual should consume sugar at a greater rate than a pound per person each two weeks, which is the current consumer allotment. This rule, he emphasized, applies to those who did not receive war ration books as well as those who were issued books.

"Reports have been received that some people who registered excess amounts of sugar think they can obtain war ration books as soon as the excess is gone, regardless of the length of time in which it was consumed," Bailey said.

"However, families which do not restrict their use of sugar to the

Church Service Starts Week Of Tribute To Soldier Dead

Ushering in a week of tribute to Mansfield's soldier dead which will be climaxed by the community Memorial day observance next Saturday, a Memorial service was conducted Sunday in Grace Episcopal church, with more than 300 in attendance.

Members of veterans' organizations and their auxiliaries marched from Memorial hall to the church to participate in the services. Rev. Glenn F. Lewis, rector, delivered the sermon on the subject, "In Worthy Remembrance."

Patriotic services also were held in other churches. Service flags bearing stars for members of the congregation now serving their country were dedicated in services at the First Methodist church and First Christian church, and 19 additional stars were unveiled on the recently-dedicated service flag at the First Lutheran church.

Veterans' organizations, at their regular meetings this week, will emphasize the Memorial day occasion.

Meanwhile, complete details of the city's Memorial day observance were announced today by F. Thane Shaw, who will be president of the day. There will be both morning and afternoon services, and at noon flags will be raised to full mast and church bells will be tolled.

The morning service will start at 10:30 with the placing of emblems and wreaths at the cemetery by the committee of the day. At 11 a. m., there will be a ser-

PREDICTS ALLIED VICTORY IN '43

Sen. Connally Says War Production Harbinger of Speedy Win.

WASHINGTON—(INS)— Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.), chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, today predicted victory for the United Nations in 1943.

While endorsing President Roosevelt's injunction against over-optimism, Conally declared that steady gains in war production in the United States and heavy blows being delivered to the Axis, are harbingers of victory.

"I am confident of victory next year, but I don't expect any quick or immediate collapse of the enemy nations," said Connally.

Asks Data On County Bridges For War Supply Movements

With the possibility looming that county roads may be needed for military movements, Richland county's road department was asked today to submit information to the state highway department on the number of bridges with more than 20-foot span on county roads and their maximum load limits.

County Engineer Howard Sword said the information is being used by the federal public road administration in a survey of the nation's highway system and its capacity for handling war supplies and troop movements.

Sword said compiling a list of the county's larger bridges will be a comparatively simple matter since he has completed a survey of the county bridges of all sizes and has only to make a separate list of those 20 or more feet long.

It was pointed out that the survey in Richland county doesn't necessarily mean that tanks and armored cars will be transported soon over the county's secondary roads. The government needs the information, however, in mapping routes across the country, Sword said.

During recent years the county has cooperated with WPA in building concrete bridges to replace old dangerous structures and the county bridge system now is considered one of the best in the state.

FARMS SUFFER

Crops Bleaching Because of Lack of Sun, Farmers Say.

Richland county farmers who were wishing for rain last month would like nothing better now than several days of warm weather and sunshine.

The cold, wet weather so far this month has delayed spring planting and retarded the growth of corn, oats, and other early crops, while wheat is growing too rapidly. Farmers report that in some sections of the county corn is bleached yellow as it comes up, suffering from lack of sunshine and too much rain.

The sun was out today but it was shining through thick haze. The weatherman said temperatures will remain moderately cool tonight. The low reading this morning was 39 degrees and the noon temperature was 63. No frost was reported this morning.

EXPECT JAM AT STADIUM SHOW

Thousands to Attend Annual Physical Education Event at School Tonight.

Postponed last Friday evening because of threatening weather, the second annual physical education demonstration of Mansfield public schools will be staged today at 7:30 p. m., according to Director Harry Mehock.

Mehock said he anticipates a packed stadium rivalling last year's crowd of 10 000.

Tickets for the show are being sold at 10 cents each with each school retaining money raised for the purchase of athletic and playground equipment.

Last year's demonstration amazed Mansfielders with the precision and speed with which the various grades went through their parts in the program, and according to Mehock tonight's show, with 4,200 pupils participating, will be equally as good or better.

Mehock has been assisted with arrangements by Glen Robinson, Edward Kissell, Harry J. Dotson and George W. Harmon.

Tenth Send-Off For Draftees To Be Held Tomorrow

The tenth send-off in the series of these civic demonstrations honoring groups of selectees leaving for army induction centers will be staged tomorrow morning, Earl Saltzgaber, chairman of the Richland Victory Civic committee, announced today.

The send-off will be for another group of colored selectees, second such contingent to leave the city in a month. It will be held in front of the Richland Trust building, at the usual time—7:30 a. m.

For the first time since start of the send-off custom on March 24, there will not be a band on hand. Instead, Saltzgaber said, arrangements are being made for a sound truck to be present to provide patriotic music and well known songs, and community singing will be added to the program for the first time. This will be led by James Brownscombe.

The group departing tomorrow will be guests of honor at a dinner and going-away party starting at 8 p. m. at the Colored Elks hall.

Austin L. Straub, 58, Native of Mansfield, Killed In Mishap Near Ashland.

5 INJURED IN COUNTY

Mansfield Woman Seriously Hurt in Accident Sunday on Route 30.

A former Mansfield man was killed and an aged Mansfield woman was seriously injured Sunday in separate traffic accidents in Ashland county while five other persons were injured in three Richland county mishaps.

Although the Mansfield area had its heaviest toll of injuries in several weeks, fewer traffic mishaps were reported in the state and only four deaths were listed in Ohio.

Austin L. Straub, 58, Ashland employe of the state highway department and former Mansfield resident, was killed instantly shortly before noon Sunday when he was struck by a car on U. S. route 250 five miles east of Ashland.

Injured Sunday afternoon in an accident on U. S. Route 30 one mile west of Hayesville, Mrs. Rose Shotwell, 85, of 135 Wood street, was in a critical condition today in General hospital. She suffered a skull fracture and possible internal injuries.

Straub was struck and run over by a car driven by A. L. Walters, 74, of Adrian, Mich., as the highway employe attempted to flag the car to a stop at a highway repair zone east of Ashland. Sheriff L. D. Hammond of Ashland county reported. A wheel of the car ran over Straub's head, fracturing his skull.

Walters told officers he was driving about 45 miles an hour when Straub stepped from behind a barricade into the highway. The car skidded on the slippery paving and was out of control when it struck the highway employe, Walters explained. The driver was exonerated. Walters was enroute

U. S. Soldier in Australia Charged With Murder.

MELBOURNE — (U.P.) — Eleven United States army officers have been named to try an American soldier in general court martial on a charge of murdering three Melbourne women within three weeks, it was announced today.

It was understood that the accused is a 25-year-old private.

The soldier was first held as the killer of Gladys Lillian Hosking, 41, found strangled beside a trench in Royal park last Tuesday. Later he was charged with the murders of Mrs. Ivy Violet McLeod, 32, May 3, and Mrs. Pauline Bichan Thompson, 41, May 9.

In each instance the clothing of the women had been stripped from their shoulders and bunched around their waists.

Smash German Wedge, Roll On Before Kharkov

Chinese Report Jap Column Routed In Chekiang Province As They Fight Desperately Against Larger Force of Enemy Troops.

(By Associated Press)

Chinese defenders in Chekiang province have routed a Japanese column along the Fuchun river north of Kienteh and inflicted 2,000 casualties, Chungking dispatches reported today, as Chinese troops battled desperately to save the provincial capital of Kinhwa.

Kienteh, 28 miles north of Kinhwa and on the north bank of the Chientang river, represented the left flank of the Chinese, whose right wing had been driven out of the arc of Pukiang, Yiwu and Tungyang, 25 to 35 miles northeast and east of Kinhwa.

Kinhwa still was in Chinese hands at last reports, the Chinese said, although dispatches from the provincial capital were delayed. The heart of the town had been bombed severely.

The Japanese were asserted to be throwing 100,000 men into the offensive.

(Tokyo newspapers declared Japanese troops were "storming into" Kinhwa, and said large sections of the town were in flames.)

Japanese dispatches claimed important successes in southeastern and southwestern China, areas 1,500 miles apart which have become the most crucial sectors of war in the far Pacific.

In southwestern province of Yunnan, Japanese forces were reported to have surged across the upper Salween river in the face of fierce Chinese fire, occupying hills from which to shield their bridgehead along the Burma road to Paoshan, 55 miles beyond.

BULLETIN

MOSCOW — (AP) — Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's renewed offensive against bitterly-contested Kharkov has gained further ground, driving the Germans from another important center of resistance, front line dispatches from the Ukraine reported today.

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW — The Russians said today the Germans had driven a wedge into the Red army's Kharkov salient "at the cost of enormous losses" but that it had been wiped out and Russian forces had driven ahead again after consolidating newly won ground.

The mid-day Soviet information bureau communique said Russian counter-attacks pinched off the wedge with heavy enemy losses.

"During the night of May 24-25," it summarized the trend in the battle, now in its 14th day, "in the Kharkov direction our troops entrenched themselves in occupied positions and continued offensive operations."

Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, reported from the Kharkov front that several populated places, including an important fortified center, had been taken by the Red army during the past 24 hours.

Although the Soviet offensive against the German-held Ukranian steel center appeared to be gaining new impetus after fierce German resistance had stalled it temporarily, the Russians again reported a defensive bat-

STICKS: British Labor Party Votes Against Ending Truce

(By United Press)

LONDON—Demands that Britain's Labor party break its wartime truce and withdraw from the Churchill government collapsed today when the party's 41st annual conference voted to continue support of the government.

The conference voted, 2,319,000 to 164,000, in favor of continued participation after hearing speeches by minority spokesmen within the party led by Lord Strabolgi, labor whip in the house of lords.

Urging abandonment of the truce which has existed among Britain's leading political parties and the establishment of a parliamentary opposition, Strabolgi said:

"The time has come when we must seriously consider withdrawing our members from the government and forming a constructive opposition in parliament."

Several laborites are included in the Churchill government, including Maj. Clement R. Attlee, deputy prime minister and dominions secretary.

The four-day conference promised to be one of the most controversial in the party's history. Some party members were in open rebellion against the political truce and expressed dissatisfaction with the alleged inability of labor cabinet members to oppose conservatives on such issues as fuel rationing, and the control of mines, railways and shipping.

Labor extremists were demanding the opening of a "second front" in Europe.

The executive committee deleted from the agenda, to the annoyance of many delegates, three resolutions inviting Sir Stafford Cripps and other expelled laborites to rejoin the party. They were declared out of order.

DEFIANT: Stilwell Asserts Burma Can, Must Be Retaken

(Editor's Note: When an American was sent as chief of staff to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, the logical choice was Chinese-speaking Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell. One word, tough, best describes 59-year-old, stubby, eagle-nosed "Vinegar Joe" whose hair and talk are both close-cropped.

When Stilwell and his staff reached Burma last February he called the situation there "a hell of a tough spot." How tough it was he can tell fully only now.

By WILLIAM M'GAFFIN
(By Associated Press)

NEW DELHI, India — Still full of fight after a "hell of a beating" in Burma and a weary march of 140 miles through wild Burmese jungles, Lieut. Gen. Joseph Stilwell declared today that Burma can be—and must be—retaken from the Japanese.

The American came out of Burma the hard way. He refused a lift from a United States army plane because he still had a job to do.

When it became clear that withdrawal was the only course, he and a group of soldiers and native nurses started from Wuntho May 4. They made more than half of the 20-day journey afoot, hidden from aerial searchers by lush tropical forests while their food supplies dwindled. General Stilwell flew here on the last leg.

He said he regarded Burma as a vitally important area for re-entry into China, now blocked from the Burma road supply route. After conferring with General Sir Archibald P. Wavell, British commander-in-chief in India, he is going back to China to talk to General Kai-Shek.

Here, in his own salty words, is what happened to the Allies in Burma:

"I claim we got a hell of a beating. We got run out of Burma and it is humiliating as hell. I think we ought to find out what caused it, go back and re-take it."

"The Japanese are not super-

RUSSIA REGAINS OFFENSIVE IN KHARKOV FIGHT

tle in the Izyum-Barvenkova sector to the south.

The Nazis suffered heavy losses there also in unsuccessful infantry charges and eight of their tanks were destroyed, the war bulletin added.

In the only other report of action on the long Russian front, it said Soviet forces on the front before Leningrad wiped out almost 300 Germans and destroyed three tanks in combating an attack by two Nazi battalions.

For the first time in several days, the Soviet information bureau announced in its overnight communique that Red army forces hammering at the defenses of Kharkov had advanced.

The announcement, which said the Russians had occupied "an important populated place," contrasted with preceding communiques reporting that Soviet troops were consolidating positions to meet Nazi counter-thrusts.

In the Izyum-Barvenkova sector, some 80 miles south of Kharkov, dispatches from the front indicated the Nazis were attacking desperately in an attempt to smash the left side of the Soviet spearhead aimed at Kharkov.

Enemy Encircled, Germans Claim

BERLIN—(By Official German Wireless)—(INS)—A German communique claimed today that the battle south of Kharkov had developed into a huge encirclement movement in which three Soviet armies had been trapped.

This, it was said, included strong armored units, and all efforts of the Russians to break through had been frustrated.

In the central sector, it was claimed, the Germans took 30 places. In Lapland, Nazi and Finnish troops were said to have wiped out "several Red divisions."

In these operations a cyclist unit, despite a difficult terrain, broke through a stiffly defended and deeply enclosed Russian bunker, the communique continued.

Axis Hints Laval May Be Forced Out

BERN, Switzerland — (AP) — As Pierre Laval conferred in Paris today with German military and political leaders, said to have grown increasingly critical of his slowness in bringing France into full collaboration with them, Axis sources revived hints that the Vichy chief of government might step out.

Rumors were reported from Vichy that Jacques Doriot, turncoat Communist, might enter the government or from his own collaborationist regime in Paris.

Informed persons in Vichy, however, expressed belief that matters had not yet reached a decisive state.

Observers said Laval's hesitancy started with the opening of United States discussions concerning the status of Martinique and that it seemed to increase as a result of the first phases of the spring fighting in Russia.

His concern now is the persistent Italian pressure for Nice and Corsica, they said, and his efforts are directed toward getting German assistance to bring that pressure to an end.

Italy's acquisition of the territory with German acquiesence could be achieved simply by a decree of the armistice commission —but Germany apparently has not yet given her approval.

Russians Praise U. S.-Built Planes

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

WITH THE RED AIR FORCE, Central Russian Front.—(AP)—A crack Russian pursuit squadron defending the approaches of Moscow is flying American-made planes exclusively—and calling for more.

This squadron containing some of the best Soviet pilots, has downed 86 enemy aircraft since the start of the war, 29 of them with American planes.

There are three types of American pursuit planes now fighting on the Russian front—the (Bell) Airacobra and the (Curtiss) Kittyhawk and Tomahawk.

I saw them in service at an airdrome defending Moscow's approaches.

The fliers said the Airacobras which they call Cobras had proved their worth among the best planes fighting for Russia, especially in low-altitude combat while Kittyhaws and Tomahawks followed in that order in their preference.

Pilots asserted that the Airacobras had outfought every German plane except a new high-altitude fighter, the Heinkel 113, which the Germans use rarely.

Fliers assigned to the American planes included Captain Evgeni Mikhailovich Gorbatyukov, 26, who was awarded Russia's highest honor, that of hero of the Soviet Union, for gallantry and heroism in air duels.

Fighter Planes Fly To Their Destinations

BUFFALO, N. Y. —(AP)— The planes that are doing Uncle Sam's fighting job against Axis aviators, the Bell Aircraft Airacobras, are being flown to their fighting fields, President Lawrence D. Bell disclosed today.

Speedy, maneuverable and more heavily armored than any other pursuit fighter ship, these planes now are going directly to their own stations in many parts of the world, he said. Special equipment allows them to make the long hops

FARM SCHOOL RUNNING SHORT OF GRADUATES

Pennsylvania Institution Has Five Jobs Awaiting Every Student.

(By United Press)

DOYLESTOWN, Pa.—The National Farm school finds itself with a tough problem to solve—finding enough graduates to go around.

There were 53 expert farmers, dairymen and landscape gardeners in the 1942 class and all of them were placed weeks ahead of commencement, so great was the demand from farm owners throughout the nation.

"We could have filled five and six times as many jobs if we only had the graduates," said Dr. Harold B Allen, school president.

Finding jobs was never a tough problem at the school, even during the depression years, Dr. Allen said.

"Sometimes a man who knows how to direct a job finds it difficult to get work but a man who can go out and do the work himself can always get a job," he added.

The class this year was one of the largest in the 46-year-old Bucks county school's history but the next several may hit a new low. The demand for farm labor and attractive prices paid in defense industries have cut the enrollment from 160 to 115, and it may go even lower.

The students at this "poor man's school" come from all sections of the country and the graduates scatter widely. Farmers everywhere know of the school and it is the rule, rather than the exception, for them to get their bids in early for the graduates.

Only recently, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau and a Washington, D. C., cemetery, flashed an S.O.S. to the school. Private Citizen Morgenthau needed an assistant orchard manager for his farm and the cemetery was in dire need of a landscape gardener. The school was able to fill both bills.

Besides landscape gardening, the school gives courses in dairying, poultry, floriculture and fruits and vegetables—or the students may take a general course combining all of them.

The bulk of the students in these courses comes from families with limited means. That was the idea behind the founding of the school in 1894. Tuition and maintenance are free, although students who can pay their way are not barred. These are encouraged to pay for some items.

are generally counted on to forestall any major offensive against India, the Japanese conquerors of Burma still were a sharp threat to China though terrific odds of terrain lay between them and Kunming, eastern terminus of the Burma road, 375 miles from their Salween foothold.

The other front, where the enemy was in perhaps more decisive position to gain a major victory, lies in Chekiank province.

The Chekiang drive, carried to its logical end, would impair the long-range prospect of setting up forward bases in China for a direct air offensive against Japan by the United Nations. The Japanese offensive also bore the earmarks of an all-out attempt to force the Chungking government to its knees.

Japs Lose 20 Planes In New Britain Raid

MELBOURNE —(U.P.)— A strong force of Allied heavy bombers, persisting in a new aerial offensive despite bad weather, destroyed or damaged 20 enemy planes yesterday in an attack on the Vunakanau airdrome, the biggest in the New Britain invasion zone northeast of Australia, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

The Allied planes broke through heavy anti-aircraft gun fire to reach the airdrome, near Rabaul. They hit, with their first bombs, heavy Japanese bombing planes on the runways. Then they dropped 20 bombs squarely in a group of 18 Japanese planes, many of which burst into flames.

Not a single Japanese fighter plane was encountered during the raid but one Allied plane was hit by anti-aircraft fire and was last seen losing altitude. It was believed that the crew may have parachuted,

It was learned that Australian planes engaged in a savage 25-minute aerial battle Saturday night when they raided the Japanese naval and air base at Amboina island, in the Netherlands East Indies, 630 miles northwest of the Australian mainland.

The Australian planes flew through heavy gun fire to bomb four Japanese ships, ranging from 1,000 to 8,000 tons. The fire was so heavy damage could not be observed.

Japs and Italians Both Go 'Fishing'

(By United Press)

Japan renewed its fishing for news of American naval dispositions in the southwest Pacific today while the Italian propaganda machine sought substantiation with which to convince South America and France that an Italian submarine had really sunk the American battleship Maryland off the Brazilian coast, as the Italian high command claimed.

The Argentine merchant marine department announced yesterday that its freighter Rio Iguazu had picked up 53 survivors in two life boats from an unnamed ship destroyed off the Brazilian coast. The announcement did not say whether the sunken ship was a warship or a merchantman and did not name the nationality of either the ship or survivors.

A few hours later, the Rome radio was broadcasting in Spanish and French that an Argentine freighter had picked up "55 survivors of the Maryland."

Several discrepancies were apparent in the Italian claims. The high command had said that the battleship was escorted by destroyers which did not "react" to the Italian underwater attack. The Italian version of the survivors did not try to explain why, if the Italian claim were true, the escorting destroyers had not picked up all the Maryland survivors, but let a freighter ship pick up some.

Meanwhile, an official Tokyo communique said that a United States battleship of the North Carolina class had been considerably damaged and a cruiser of the Portland type sunk in the battle of the Coral sea.

(Battleships of the North Carolina class are of latest 35,000 ton type with nine 16-inch guns each.)

Defy Gravity To Repair Bomb Bay

LONDON —(INS)— A couple of intrepid Americans who didn't give a hoot about the law of gravity, and who dangled head downward from the body of a bomber to close a jammed bomb bay door, were described today in a Reuters (British) news service report from an Australian point.

The Americans were identified as Sgt. John Engleman, of Indiana, and Corp. Pat Norton, of St. Louis.

The door jam was discovered after an attack by United Nations planes on Lae, New Guinea.

It was said that the action of the two non-commissioned officers, lowered by ropes to effect the mid-air repair job, probably saved the big plane, since its speed was being seriously impeded by the mishap.

CLEVELAND CAR CREWS WALK OUT

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Crews of street cars and buses working out of the Madison avenue car barns walked off their jobs today because they claimed they had not received their pay, due Saturday.

W. N. Ray, financial secretary of the AFL-Street Railway and Motor Coach operators, declared "the walkout does not have authorization of the union." He said he would confer with Mayor Frank J. Lausche at once.

Meanwhile, James A. Barnes, union president, conferred with motormen, conductors and bus operators at the Madison barns.

to the funeral of a relative in Akron.

Born in Mansfield Jan. 28, 1884, Straub had lived in Ashland for 41 years. He had been employed by the state highway department for the past three years. He was a Spanish-American war veteran and saw service in the Philippines.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Denbow-Bear Funeral home in Ashland. Rev. H. E. Andrews of the Presbyterian church will officiate. Burial will be in the Ashland cemetery.

Surviving are the widow, Mrs. Grace Lockhart Straub; two daughters, Mrs. Sadie Kane and Elaine Straub, both at home; one brother, Louis Straub of New London, and two sisters, Mrs. Minnie Anstine of Canton and Mrs. Lena Pollack of Oregon.

Suffering minor injuries in the same accident with Mrs. Shotwell were Mrs. H. E. Roberts, 135 Wood street, and her son, Robert, 5. They received cuts and bruises. The car, which was being driven by H. E. Roberts, 38, same address, went off the highway and overturned, state highway patrolmen said. Two other children in the car escaped injury. Roberts told officers the steering apparatus on the car broke, causing him to lose control of the automobile.

Mrs. Charlotte Meade, 26, of Strongville, O., was injured about 10 a. m. today in an accident inviving two cars and a milk truck at the B. and O. grade crossing in Lexington. She was treated in General hospital. Mrs. Meade escaped serious injuries.

Mrs. Meade was riding with Ruel Ernest Elwin, 29, Cleveland, whose left arm was injured. The other drivers, Woodrow Wilson Howell, 465 Tracy street, Mansfield, who was operating the second car, and Samuel Richard Kisling, Lexington, the truck driver, were not hurt.

State highway patrolmen said Kisling pulled to the left to park and Howell, in attempting to avoid colliding with the truck, swerved into Elwin's car.

Emil Baich, 26, of 349 Bowman street, suffered fractures of his left arm and his companion, Ernest Kidwell, 32, of the same address, received cuts and bruises late Saturday when the car driven by Baich ran off State Route 39 and overturned six miles north of Mansfield. State highway patrolmen said Baich apparently fell asleep.

Mansfield police investigated seven accidents in the city, but the only person reported injured was Henry E. Michael, 34, of 619 Maple street. He received cuts and bruises on his knees Saturday night when his car figured in a collision with one driven by Fred C. Seidel, 40, Shelby R. D. 2, at Sixth and Bowman streets.

Elsewhere in Ohio, James Alfred Fidler, 37, of near Lakeview, was fatally injured when struck by an automobile on State Route 69 north of Bellefontaine. Fidler was obeying a court order of March 8, forbidding him to drive his automobile.

Ernest Ray McLaughlin, 52-year-old Pennsylvania railroad engineer, died in a Columbus hospital of injuries suffered April 26 when his automobile overturned.

Mrs. Olive Fairman, 78, was Columbus' 21st traffic victim of the year. She was struck and killed by an automobile Saturday night.

Hershel Locke, 49, of Verona, near Dayton, was killed when his automobile left the road and crashed into bridge abutment near his home.

THE WAR TODAY

(This daily feature, conducted by DeWitt Mackenzie, Wide World war analyst, is being written in his absence for a fortnight by Fred Vanderschmidt.)

The main reason that talk about a short war has a hollow ring is the gravity of the situation at sea, all around our own shores, where the Axis submarines, with sinister exultancy, are still sinking many American ships.

We cannot win this war without fighting it many thousands of miles away; we cannot fight it without the ships to carry men, tanks, guns, supplies and some of the planes.

In great measure these ships, for both our Allies and ourselves, must come from the United States, and we are building them on a scale never known before. But the Axis is also sinking ships in a fashion we were hardly prepared to expect.

Americans know this is true; it is making some important changes in their lives, and will make a great many more. For various reasons, however, they are not getting enough information to realize the effect the present Axis submarine campaign is having on the day-to-day fighting on every front, from Kharkov to Free China, and on the long-range preparation of the great offensives which must win the war for the United Nations.

The fact that a ship or ships are sunk, the number of men lost or missing, the number of survivors, are announced from day to day; very little more.

Official announcements for last week, for instance, said 19 U. S. and Allied ships were sunk on our side of the Atlantic, in the Caribbean and in the Gulf of Mexico, with 286 dead or missing and 425 survivors.

These are serious figures, but they are not very graphic; they do not convey to the reader very much of what the week's toll meant in fighting power lost and fighting time stolen.

To tell those things, the authorities feel, would give information to the enemy which might aid him. Meanwhile, the enemy is grinding out boastful figures of the tonnages of U. S. and Allied ships sunk by submarines, and sending out sly fishing expeditions in the form of claims to the sinking of large U. S. warships.

These claims are not answered for the same reason: lest the enemy be told something he does not know.

Nobody has yet settled this problem; the British, with two years more of war and sea disaster than we have had, have finally discontinued altogether the reporting of merchant ship sinkings at regular periods.

COMMITTEE OK ON NEW INCOME TAX PLAN SEEN

House Group Takes Action Today on Pay-as-You-Earn Proposal.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The house ways and means committee today was expected to approve the treasury's plan for installment collection of individual income taxes.

The plan has the backing in principle by a majority of committee members, and has received strong endorsement from congressmen and senators concerned with the writing of the new $8,700,000,000 war-revenue measure.

Modifications may be written into the pay-as-you-earn treasury plan to exempt certain classes of farm workers and others who would be hard-hit by bookkeeping requirements of the proposal. There was no indication, however, that the proposed rate of 10 per cent of taxable incomes would be changed in committee.

Expected committee action today would virtually complete work on direct corporate and personal income taxes, leaving only excise levies still to be worked out by the committee.

At the present rate, house committee work of drafting the revenue bill will be completed by June 15 and be ready for submission to the house of representatives.

Under a formula worked out by the treasury, single persons would pay 10 per cent of their weekly earnings over $11 a week into the treasury to be credited to their tax liability. Married persons would pay 10 per cent of all over $26 a week. Both single and married persons would be allowed an additional $8.50-a-week exemption for each dependent.

Randolph Paul, treasury tax expert, has estimated that the plan would collect $2,500,000,000 a year from individuals, and make tax paying more nearly "painless" for the vast majority of American citizens.

Not only would war-revenues pour into the treasury in a more orderly fashion under the plan, it is contended, but it would also contribute to efforts to check the inflation trend.

If the proposal is put into operation by congress, $1,250,000,000 will be drawn out of the nation's purchasing power between July 1 and the end of the year, the treasury contends.

SET UP DRASTIC METAL CONTROL

WPB Revises Priority System To Direct Flow From Mine To Finished Product.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Shortages in war-needed metals have become so serious that the war production board soon will revise its allocation and priority system to direct their flow from the mines to the finished products, it was learned today.

An order, to be issued within a week or 10 days, will establish the most drastic controls ever set up over metals in this country.

The present system has been too loose, some officials said, and WPB surveys have disclosed leakages to non-essential uses as the metals went from plant to plant.

"The proposed "end use" classification will make it possible for WPB officials to identify each shipment of materials until it finally has become part of a tank, ship, plane, gun or essential civilian product. Under the "end use" system, it will be possible to earmark a mine's daily output for a designated place in the war production effort.

For example, a particular run from a steel mill would be marked for a specific ship in a designated shipyard; the iron ore also would have its "end use" marking from the time it left the mine.

Many holders of priority ratings have complained that under the present regulations it was necessary for them to bid against others holding the same ratings if there was not enough materials to satisfy all demands in a single classification.

Killer Sentenced To Sanitarium To Take Liquor Cure

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Common Pleas Judge Frederick J. Walther today sentenced Robert Blackman, 23, to five years in a sanitarium to cure him of the alcohol habit.

Blackman had been charged with killing James Pickett in a brawl on March 1. Blackman told the court that he had been drinking and that he had no recollection of the fight. He said that his mind always went blank when he drank.

Judge Walther called in two psychiatrists, who made tests on Blackman. They reported that alcohol had the effect of "blacking out" his mind.

The court ordered that relatives pay the bills for Blackman's treatment at a sanitarium and they agreed.

POLICE LAUNCH SEARCH FOR CLEVELAND JAIL BREAKERS

(By International News Service)

CLEVELAND — Local, county and state police are hunting today for a pair of youthful prisoners, who, with a third companion later captured, broke out of the "escape proof" county jail in a bold daylight attempt yesterday afternoon.

Captured was Richard Woy, 18, of Elyria, being held for FBI agents on a charge of transporting a stolen automobile across state lines.

Still at large are fugitives George Arnold, 26, serving a 10 to 25-year sentence for armed robbery, and Chester Baskiewicz, 18, indicted on a charge of automobile stealing Arnold, who had slashed his wrist in jail earlier in the month, had served two terms in Mansfield reformatory and two terms in the county workhouse at Warrensville.

The prisoners sawed through two iron bars, cut the metal sash of a window and wriggled their way through smashed panes to a fifth floor terrace.

A "ladder" of bed sheets and pillow cases tied together allowed the prisoners to make their way down the side of the building.

Arnold, according to the captured Woy, was the leader of the trio and the first man down. Woy followed and was mid-way between the terrace and the ground when the "ladder" broke He suffered a broken right ankle and fractured spine.

The injured man was taken to an empty lot near the jail and placed behind a billboard by his companions before they left. Police found Woy about four hours after the break when passers-by said they thought a drunken man was lying behind the sign. Woy told police he was not sorry he made the break and would do it again if he had the chance.

TWO INJURED

Powers told police that he stepped backward to avoid being hit by a passing car, lost his footing and fell. The Sandusky man said that he dragged himself to the sidewalk and asked a passer-by to call police. He was taken to General hospital and admitted for treatment.

The other person injured was Orin Young, transient, who suffered a severe head laceration as the result of a fall off a curb at North Diamond and Olive streets. Young was treated at General hospital and arrested on an intoxication charge. He pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs in municipal court this morning.

MINE WORKERS EXPECTED TO TAKE ACTION

Committee Convenes To Consider Lewis CIO Loan Claim.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The United Mine Workers' Policy committee and International Executive board today begin a three-day meeting which may bring a further showdown between UMW Chief John L. Lewis and Philip Murray, UMW vice president and head of the CIO.

The meeting was called to consider the problem of paid vacations for miners or the alternative of extra compensation for continuing uninterrupted production, but some action on the Lewis-Murray matter is expected.

Murray last week was elected president of the newly formed United Steel Workers of America and he decided to draw his salary of $20,000 annually from the steel union and drop his $18,000 income as the miners' vice president.

He said, however, that he "hoped" to continue at his UMW post, without compensation, until his term expires in April. His future status with the mine workers may be brought up before the executive board.

The UMW is also expected to take up the matter of Lewis' claims that the CIO owes the union $1,665,000 which he said was made as a loan during the CIO's formative period. The CIO has flatly rejected the claim, however, and declared that if the back per capita tax which the miners owe is not paid, the union would not be granted representation at the next CIO convention in October or November.

Lewis and Murray broke over President Roosevelt's foreign policies. A supporter of Wendell Willkie, Lewis quit his post as CIO president when the Republican candidate lost the election.

The split between the two mine leaders was further widened recently when Lewis, chairman of the CIO peace committee, proposed that unity conversations be renewed between the CIO and AFL. He acted without prior consultation with Murray who denounced the move as another "Pearl Harbor" attack.

Ohio Couple, Son Survive Atlantic Submarine Attack

FINDLAY —(INS)— An oil company engineer and his family were back home today after the harrowing experience of their ship being torpedoed and of spending 14 hours in an open lifeboat.

Leonard E. Cupples, 23; his wife, Juanita, 21, and their son, Billie, 16 months, were landed at Key West, Fla., by a Norwegian ship which rescued some of the survivors.

Cupples went to Columbia, S. A., last September to work for an oil company. His back was injured in a fall and he and his family were returning home when their small American cargo vessel was sunk by an enemy submarine in the Caribbean on May 16.

The Findlay family were the only passengers. The crew numbered 29, five of whom were killed and one was listed as missing as a result of submarine gunfire.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, MAY 25, 1942.

Who'd ever have thought that those abandoned interurban lines might again come in handy sometime?

With 10 per cent for this and 10 per cent for that, what's needed right now is a dollar with eleven tenths.

Earlier patriots cried out against "taxation without representation"—which, after all, wasn't much worse than congressmen taking more than their share of gasoline.

Higher Pay for Men In Service

AGREEMENT by a senate-house committee in congress on $42 minimum monthly pay for soldiers and sailors seems a fair point at which to place the basic figure, as there will be additional compensation in many cases, also increases after specified length of service.

While military duty, when necessary to the well-being of the nation, has always been regarded as an obligation of citizenship, there is also a feeling that no salary which could be paid would be adequate compensation for the sacrifices that must be made and the dangers encountered by men who serve in any branch of the armed service in time of war.

Whatever payment is made to men who are fighting for their country, for their own sustenance and to assure comfortable living for their dependents, should be considered as coming from a common fund to which everybody contributes, remembering that this item of cost is only a part of the vast expenditures necessitated by war.

It is also worthy of note that the $42 minimum monthly pay will make the American armed forces the most highly paid of any army in the world, with the Australian army in second place and Canadian soldiers third. Minimum pay in the English army is $12 a month, or slightly under the $13 paid privates in the Union army during the Civil war. The German army's minimum pay is estimated at $21.60 a month and Italian soldiers get as little as $1.50 a month.

It is quite proper that American soldiers, being accustomed to higher standards of living, should be the highest paid, and it is gratifying to realize that this country is great enough, and prosperous enough, to take good care of the men who are called into military service and to make sure that their dependents have financial security.

There will be public approval of increases in the pay of the nation's soldiery, to the extent of ability to pay.

'Over the Hump' In Production

THERE is good news in recent figures of war production. American industry, in spite of what seemed a slow start, has shamed the pessimists and done the impossible. War goods to the amount of $20,000,000,000 were turned out last year. It was hoped to double that for this year. But so rapidly has output rolled up that, instead of $40,000,000,000 worth for 1942, the output is now expected to reach $58,000,000,000, nearly three times as great as last year.

So, Uncle Sam is beginning to produce the war materials at a rate never matched before, not even by the German war machine when concentrating the utmost effort of several countries on that job after years of preparation. From now on we should be able to swamp Hitler with armament—if we can deliver it over there.

Transportation is the bottleneck now. Too many carrier ships are being sunk. When that difficulty is overcome, as it was in the last war, and will be in this one, there can be a feeling of greater confidence that the end is in sight.

Medical Progress In America

DURING the short span of 150 years—really short as history is written—American medicine has moved forward to a position of universally recognized world leadership," said John M. Pratt of the national physicians' committee for the extension of medical service, in a recent talk. "It has provided a more effective and more widely and evenly distributed medical care than has ever been provided anywhere at any time.

"It was only yesterday—as time is measured—when cholera and smallpox marched unchecked back and forth across continents killing half the populations of vast areas and wiping out entire towns and villages. These dread killers have been checked. During this period of 150 years, typhoid fever, diphtheria, diabetes, tuberculosis, pernicious anemia and a score of lesser ailments have been made to yield to the science and skill of the American physician. Actually, during this short period, the life span of man has been doubled. In 1790 the life expectancy was 35 years—today it is 62 years. These achievements are without parallel in the history of the progress of mankind."

Appreciating the Black Walnut

THERE is a rapidly increasing demand now for black walnut lumber, especially for military purposes. It is used largely for gunstocks and airplane propellers, as well as furniture, cabinets and musical instruments, and is one of the most valuable woods in this country. The state forest tree nurseries in Pennsylvania have allotted all the seedlings available for planting this year, and in several other states the supply is far short of requirements.

It would be well if a more serious and widespread job were made of restoring this fine old American tree to the status it used to have, before the years of indiscriminate cutting without replacement. There is probably no more valuable tree in America. And it has the extra merit of being precious for its nuts as well as its wood. Americans have almost forgotten the rich and satisfying flavor of this wonderful nut, which old-timers often rate as far superior to its more delicate cousin, the English walnut.

You Can Get Coal Now

WITHOUT wishing to be over-insistent in a matter that rests entirely upon individual decision, it may again be pointed out that Washington has repeated the warning, "Buy Coal Now."

There is plenty of coal now—and railroads still have facilities to bring it from the mines. But there is no assurance that this will continue through the summer and fall, due to increased requirement for military movement.

Supplies may be low, or undeliverable, by the time people using coal for heating their home really need it. Wise precaution: Buy your coal now.

It was an idea of the late Justice Brandeis that "behind almost every argument you will find the astounding ignorance of someone"—as you have noticed, of course, when the other fellow doesn't agree with you.

THEY WILL BE HOME TO ROOST IN NOVEMBER

Now It's 'Foodlegging' Racket

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

THAT wartime Washington's a perfect lunatic asylum is no news. I've remarked on it myself and so have plenty of other chroniclers. It gets worse so fast, though, that it's hard to keep up with.

Weird dotty new manifestations present themselves every day.

For example, "foodlegging" has just broken out formidably.

Foodlegging of provisions, in excess of rationing regulations, and, of course, at fancy prices, corresponds to the bootlegging of liquor during the prohibition period.

"Clotheslegging" and "gasleggings" and all sorts of other "leggings" promise to follow shortly.

"They not only threaten to nullifying rationing, but authorities are apprehensive that they'll lead to hijacking, terrorism and miscellaneous gangsterism, like old-fashioned bootlegging's various forms.

Confidence men also have been caught, getting positively rich, selling gas masks that won't work, and dozens of additional items of supposedly protective equipment, for civilian use, that any experts instantly recognize as absolutely worthless.

Elsewhere, Too.

Probably the same stunts are being pulled, more or less, throughout the whole country, but the capital's the present focus of 'em.

Crimes of violence have rather dwindled in the capital of late, but vice, authorities say, is rampant. They can't keep it in hand, there are so many strangers here, whom they know nothing about.

Gambling's described as wholly uncontrollable.

The suggestion's made that it would be a bright idea to turn the tendency to account by the establishment of a government lottery, sucking the life out of it as a form of social entertainment and, at the same time, making it pay federal dividends.

I've seen government lotteries in several different countries, and I never thought that frauds of that type were very dignified businesses for governments to engage in, whether they pay or not. Nevertheless, one's boosted for here. It seems to me it would be a cheap money-making scheme for as decent a personality as Uncle Sam. A gambling-game proprietor!

I've already had occasion to remark that Washington's congestion is such as to have created an alarm lest it breed contagious disease epidemic as the summer wags along.

Landlords Profiteer.

But housing?

Girl workers for the government are the ones there's the worst worrying about.

As first-class notabilities as Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Labor Secretary Frances Perkins have taken up their cause.

Landlords are profiteering on 'em, it appears. Oh, yes, the landlords have ceilings put over 'em, but they can wiggle around restrictions, or they can refuse to rent. It's true, not only of the gals, but of families, too.

It's sufficiently demonstrated by what Washington's tenants are doing.

They're moving out into trailers.

Now, a trailer community isn't calculated to be overly sanitary.

They have 'em in every war-producing community, but Washington's the limit.

Vision of Glory

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THE YEAR was 1863, with America in such agony as she had never known before. For this was no struggle with a foreign foe. Brother was pitted against brother, father against son, and every American heart was swept clean of personal joy or faith.

Then, toward a certain morning, a woman felt a great song stirring within her. And groping out of her sleep, Julia Ward Howe wrote these immortal words:

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord:
"He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored;
"He hath loosed the fateful lightning of His terrible swift sword;
"His truth is marching on."

"MINE EYES HAVE SEEN THE GLORY OF THE COMING OF THE LORD."

We modern Americans have not seen much of the coming of the Lord. We have seen the coming of sewing machines and telephones, electric irons and radios, automobiles and airplanes.

And that has been just about all we could take, and we have taken it, plenty. We have wrapped ourselves in luxuries; we have wallowed in comfort. But of that stern and shining vision which led our fathers on, we have seen little.

We have forgotten that no nation can survive unless it sees "the coming of the Lord" at intervals and knows its sacrifice and agony, its beauty and inspiration.

But now, once again, even the most stupid, even the most complacent, are seeing "the coming of the Lord." We are seeing Him "trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored."

We are seeing men rising above their personal wrath and grief and fear, above their private desires, and hurling themselves into the very jaws of death in a fight for principle.

We are seeing a nation arm itself and give itself, not for profit or private gains but for Right, for that dream of freedom and truth which has lingered in our hearts through all our years of folly and waste.

It is given us to suffer. We will never see our old way of life again. We will never know the comfort and security we once enjoyed. But we will see renewed the vision that made America, and that carried us through our first tumultuous years.

"I have seen Him in the watchfires of a hundred circling camps;
"They have builded Him an altar in the evening dews and damps;
"I can read his righteous sentence by the dim and flaring lamps;
"HIS DAY IS MARCHING ON."

Do not wait until history tells you that you have lived through the greatest day in the human story. Do not kneel before the altar waiting for inspiration. Every line from India, Java, Australia or China is telling you, calling you, waking you out of your sleep. Every line is crying:

"Mine eyes have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord;
"He is trampling out the vintage where the grapes of wrath are stored;
"He hath loosed the fateful lightning of His terrible swift sword;
"His truth is marching on."

Rise and meet that glory!

TODAY IN HISTORY

Legislatures of all states save one responded to a call for delegates to a convention at Philadelphia for the sole purpose of revising the Articles of Confederation. The convention lasted from May 25, 1787 to Sept. 17 of the same year. However, instead of confining itself to revision of the Articles of Confederation, the convention proceeded to frame a new Constitution, that which we have today.

Murray Cohorts Have Brickbats In Readiness to Hurl at Lewis

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—WAAC, the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps, is too new to have many hard and fast rules, but here is one: Members cannot have a baby.

Genevieve Forbes Herrick, able executive assistant and press relations chief to "General" Oveta Culp Hobby, firmly declared that "acts of God" will not be recognized and pregnancy will automatically result in discharge from the corps.

WAAC is receiving hundreds of letters, telegrams and telephone calls from women desiring to enlist, but Mrs. Herrick emphasized that no recruits will be enlisted until 450 officers have been trained—probably in three months.

Officers will be selected in the various army corps areas. Any woman between the ages of 21 and 45 may apply at an army recruiting station. The army will select the officers.

Most applicants so far are from the higher income groups—Junior League, D. A. R., etc. But WAAC hopes to draw its personnel, both officers and enlistees, from a wide social and economic range.

Byrdlike Economy.

FOR two days this week Senator Harry F. Byrd led a slashing senate attack to halve all funds for the Farm Security Administration, which aids tenants and little farmers. The bitter attack got nowhere. The senate slapped Byrd down by the overwhelming vote of 48 to 16.

This was no new experience for the millionaire Virginia apple-grower. Although frequently rebuffed, Byrd continues to be the No. 1 Clamorer for Economy—except when it comes to certain personal matters.

For at the very time he was raising a great economy hullabaloo against Farm Security, Byrd was allowing a wealthy personal friend to use government property free of charge.

As chairman of the senate rules committee, Byrd in effect is custodian of the senate office building. He assigns office space and runs the administrative affairs of the vast marble structure.

In this capacity, Byrd has permitted a friend who is not a member of the senate to occupy without cost a spacious suite and to enjoy all the perquisites of a senator, including free telephones, stationery, electricity, typewriters, furniture, garage space, etc.

This favored friend is ex-Senator John G. Townsend of Delaware, like Byrd a wealthy fruit grower, and another loud economy advocate.

Townsend was defeated for re-election in 1940. But enjoying Byrdlike economy he has continued to occupy a large senatorial office since early 1941 and to use it to transact political and other business as chairman of the Republican campaign committee.

All this has not set well with several senators, particularly the two Delaware Democrats, Senators James H. Hughes and James M. Tunnell. Finally Tunnell went to Byrd and declared bluntly:

"This man is not a member of the senate and he has no right to a free office for his private activities. He should be removed without delay."

"But, Senator," protested Byrd, "I can't do that. You must understand my position. Mr. Townsend is an old and very dear friend of mine."

Note—In cuffing Byrd on the Farm Security issue, the senate also gave the boot to his close buddy, Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee who, while one of the most active patronage grabbers in congress, publicly is an economy thumper. McKellar was Byrd's right-hand lieutenant in the FSA fight.

Lewis Jolt.

JOHN L. LEWIS may get a surprise jolt at the United Mine Worker policy committee meeting he called.

Announced purpose of the powwow is to consider miner vacation and pay problems, but the real reason is to provide Lewis with the trappings to vent his spleen on Phil Murray and the CIO. Lewis plans to oust Murray as United Miner vice president and withdraw the UMW from the CIO.

As the policy committee is made up largely of hand-picked Lewis henchmen, he is virtually certain to have his way. But the fight may not be as one-sided as he expects.

Murray forces have two brickbats up their sleeve that are sure to cause noisy explosions.

One is a demand that Lewis reveal how many relatives he has on union payrolls and the total Lewis family "take" from this source. According to a recent Washington Merry-Go-Round computation, nine members of the Lewis clan draw more than $100,000 annually from union funds.

The other bombshell is a demand for a complete report on the operations of UMW District 50, which Lewis has been using for organization sorties into agriculture, transportation, munitions and other key industries. It is charged that in New York, District 50, agents have been secretly playing ball with Christian Front elements.

Lewis has never disclosed any information on the extent of his nepotism and the activities of District 50, which he rules with an iron first through his daughter, Kathryn, whom he appointed to the $7,500 a year post as secretary-treasurer of the union. Demands that he make full reports on both matters are sure to draw fire from him.

Another Raid.

MEANWHILE, CIO chiefs are busy behind the scenes repelling another attempted Lewis raid.

This one is in the Packinghouse Workers, headed by J. C. Lewis. Although no relation of John L., J. C. is a close henchman and a veteran UMW organizer.

Recently, Murray received a number of complaints from PW members that J. C. was quietly working with a group of Lewis agents, headed by Ray Edmondson, another veteran Lewis henchman, to pull the union out of the CIO and presumably tie up with District 50.

Irate PW officials have asked Murray to remove J. C. and to clean out other Lewisites. Action on this is scheduled to be taken at the next CIO executive board meeting.

Note—One United Mine Workers state branch already has quit the CIO. Under the leadership of William Mitch, Alabama isolationist, officials of District 20, which he heads, voted to withdraw from the Alabama State Industrial Union Council.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON— Weekends are funny in Washington. For the thousands of civilian government workers, quitting time Saturday is the signal to get out of town. Trains and busses for Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York are jammed.

But for the soldiers at Ft. Belvair and Ft. Myer in Virginia, and Ft. Meade in Maryland, and for the sailors at Norfolk, Va., and the marines at Quantico, the weekend is the time to come to Washington. They pour out of the busses like peas out of a pod.

THE sad part of the story is that Washington, the nation's capital, doesn't have room for them to sleep. The lucky ones get in at the YMCA or one of the service men's clubs. But Saturday night always finds the uncomfortable benches of Union Station lined with woe-begone young men in khaki, blue or marine corps green.

Not that service authorities and private agencies aren't aware of the problem. You don't have to be much of a newspaper reader to know that room of any kind is almost impossible to find in Washington.

Here are some reports from various agencies on a recent Saturday night, when 712 service men found beds, but at least 500 were turned away:

The Army recreation cantonment at Arlington, Va., took care of all the men who applied, 191 of them, but Col. Walter Lang, commanding officer, warned that he couldn't handle any more.

The Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club accommodated 123 men but turned away 200.

Servicemen's Club No. 1 had beds for 240 men but it, too, had to refuse about 200.

The G Street YMCA slept 50 uniformed men. Thirty more doubled up in chairs or sprawled on the floor or stairways. A hundred went looking elsewhere.

The YMCA for colored men had 28 beds available, and 14 men tried chairs and floors.

All Souls church found room in its parish hall for 25 cots, and a private agency was able to find beds in private homes for 11 men.

ONE hope is that more churches will be able to set up temporary sleeping quarters.

"It isn't a question of willingness," says Grover Hartman, defense commission chairman of the Washington Federation of Churches. "All the churches are willing. Rather it's a question of the churches having canteens and facilities for the job. I feel there are four or five churches other than All Souls which can pitch in."

There's some indication, too, of a drive to get private residents to open up their homes to one or two boys, for Washington's conscience is bothering her. Is she comforting the stranger within her gates?

A Farmer's Diary

Whip-Poor-Will

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I TOOK a short drive, this evening, with my wife, along back country roads — narrow, rough, uneven gravel drives, where we passed no cars—only farm wagons drawn by horses, and a tractor with a trailer hitched close behind. A neighbor was plowing on the summit of a western hill. The shadow of each horse, the plow, the man, reached almost halfway across the plateau field. "Giants of the earth," came to my mind.

Farther down the valley, grazing sheep came bleating from the pasture, newly shorn. The lambs trooped after, skipping and jumping stiff-legged in high spirits. The contagion of play moved through the flock of lambs, while the placid ewes stood mutely by and watched, chewing . . . chewing.

Another farmer had stabled his cows for milking time. We passed along near the shed, and heard the rapid alternating streams of milk careening into the pails. Some hogs and young cattle rubbed about the dwindling stack.

At the highest point where the winding road borders our own valley, we stopped awhile on the narrow berm, and looked off across the neighboring hills and the broad fertile fields of Honey creek. We felt early dusk settling down about the great expanse of country, like a sheltering garment. One by one the oil lamps twinkled in our neighbors' windows and far at the northern edge, our own cottage light beamed forth.

It was as quiet and restful a rural picture as anyone could imagine. We sat, silent, soaking up the spacious airy far-flung vista of hills and lights and sky. The breeze trembled the branches of a wild cherry, lacy with pointed blooms.

Suddenly, from the deep hollow, a whippoorwill began his nightly song. Whip-poor-will, whip-poor-will, six different times. Far off, across a valley on another ridge we heard the answer of his mate, very faintly from that distance. Many times repeated, they kept up this feathered conversation. They were still calling when we went on home, carrying their refrain, like an echo of tranquility, with us.

Service Letters Answered

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I've been working hard on a physical fitness program in the hope of getting into the Army. I've been examined and rejected because of T. B. scars on my lungs. My own doctor tells me the scars are probably due to a childhood attack and that I am now physically sound. I'm very anxious to enlist. What would you suggest?

A.L.K.

Apply for a re-examination by the Examining Army Surgeon. Bring him a letter from your own doctor, saying that in his opinion you are physically sound.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I read your column every day, but I never see anything about arranging correspondence between girls and soldiers. Does your column stand for such an exchange of letters?

PRIVATE G.

Please don't think me unsympathetic, but this column never acts as an exchange between correspondents. If you want to write to girls with whom you are unacquainted you must apply to some other source.

Your Uncle Sam does not favor these "Letters to an Unknown" to the extent they were encouraged in the first World war. It has been proven that some of these long-distance sweethearts were doing a little Fifth Column work on the side, and even if it were not the case, the boys were often handing on information about troop movements and ship sailings. This they did innocently, of course, and the girls thoughtlessly passed on this information.

If you want to write to a girl and haven't got one, some tried and true buddy in the service may give you an address.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

There would be no trouble about my enlistment in the Army if the matter of my birth certificate could be made out to the satisfaction of my parents. I did not know until this question of my enlistment came up that I was born 18 months prior to my parents' marriage. There was some difficulty about my father getting a divorce from a woman convicted of a felony. Our home life has been very happy, and there really is no use in Dad and Mom taking this situation as they do. But what about my birth certificate. B. L.

Do not take this too seriously. The world is kinder today to those born out of wedlock than it was even a few years ago. Give the date of your birth, and the name of your mother. As far as I've been able to find out, there is no question of illegitimacy attack to a soldier's record.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, May 26.

A mildly adverse situation may be presaged for this day on the basis of current lunar transits, which not only have a retarding, restricting and surprising influence on affairs generally but also discouraging initiative and enterprise. It is probable that any worthwhile plans or major projects will not make much headway and may be defeated entirely by rash, impetuous, quarrelsome and ill-timed actions.

Those whose birthday it is may best assure a happy, profitable and productive year by an exercise of restraint, moderation and temperance in all their actions and contacts, whether business, social, affectional, or financial. It might be hazardous or disagreeable to attempt to start new enterprises or to push issues by main force in any direction.

A child born on this day may be willful, wayward, reckless and impulsive although it may have great energy and initiative.

Reducing? Take Plenty Of Time

By MME. QUI VIVE

Women wait for months and years to start a reducing program, expect to slenderize and be willowy in a few weeks. If that's sense we miss our guess. Adipose tissue is solid substance, does not melt away like snowflakes in the sun.

How much weight can a woman delete with safety? Not more than two pounds a week, if she is to keep well, highly energized. Rapid reducing is a shock to the physical system. It has a bad effect upon the nerves and the disposition. The body must adjust itself to changes that are going on, if strength is to be maintained. The active woman who fares forth each morn to bring home the bacon and spinach must step carefully along the road to youthful contour. She cannot afford to lose out on vitality; if she does she will not be efficient, will tire easily.

Place no faith in freak diets. There's always a new one going the rounds. The candidate for a more youthful figure must stick to her balanced diet. She must have a variety of foods, but she must cut down on elements that make for weight and larger measurement.

The rotund lady may eat little, but what she eats may be the very elements that store themselves away in curves and bumps. That will happen if she gets no exercise. She should have a varied diet, consisting of lean meat, fish, poultry, all vegetables except potatoes—though she can have them in moderation—all fruits (no sweet preserves), buttermilk, cottage cheese, one egg a day if she likes.

Tea and coffee should be taken clear. A demon coffee drinker, taking six or seven cups a day, each one with cream and sugar added, will get enough fat and sugar to keep her overweight. Fats, starches and sweets are her enemies. They are the meanies that keep her trailing to the stylish stouts department. They are the busy little fat builders. She can't delete them entirely from the diet, but she must partake of them sparingly.

Fifteen minutes of muscle workout each day will help along the campaign. The most effective exercises are those that tone the muscles of the mid-section, the favorite gathering place for fat cells. Bending, torso twisting, stretching, done with a strenuous muscle effort, will tighten fibers, cause suet to go off and die.

The lazy life won't do. All plumpies aren't lazy by any means, but dragging around excess baggage slows up the step. At the start exercise must be in moderation.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

AN UNDESERVED GIFT

Most bridge players do not boast very often about gifts they receive from their opponents. But, when it is a fellow's birthday, and a kindly opponent has handed him a present which he did not deserve perhaps he should acknowledge it then, especially if he can tell that opponent how to avoid giving such a gift in the future. Assuring your contract first and then trying a finesse for an extra trick is good rubber bridge, but if you attempt one earlier than that and thereby risk your contract, you are merely taking a chance of doing an undue kindness to the opponent.

Here West led his diamond 4 which South won with his A, following it with a finesse of the heart J to the Q. The diamond 10 was taken by South with the K—his second consecutive bad play, as he should have ducked and won the third diamond. Next he won the spade A and K, but when he lost a third spade to the Q, the opponents cashed two more diamonds and two clubs, setting the contract two tricks.

South would have been set one trick anyway because of his heart finesse, but when he failed to hold up on the second diamond lead, he caused himself to be beaten two tricks.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

"HE IS Professor Diswell's helper," I said, in answer to my father's question. Then I rose from my seat and put my hand in my father's, quickly outstretched.

"I simply must have some air," I murmured.

"Pretend to bend over me, as if I were ill," I told him. "I have something to tell you."

"Aha!" he said as he obeyed me, his voice muted and his features imperturbable. "If it's the real answer to my question and as important as all this, I believe I have guessed it."

Tells Who "Charles" Is

"Professor Diswell's pretended servant, answering to the name 'Charles,' is in reality Jack Bickett," I said softly, "and he believes himself to be in so great danger that he endangers anyone with whom he is in contact. It was all I could do to persuade him to see you. He had intended to leave us as soon as we should arrive in New York."

"Hot-headed boy!" my father muttered. I suppressed a smile with difficulty, for Jack, as well as the rest of our generation, long since left youth behind.

"Of course he and Diswell must stay here tonight," he said. "You will introduce him as Charles, and I will respect his incognito until he himself tells me what I have just learned from you.

"Now here is what we will do," he went on, and I saw that the general already had planned his campaign. "I will take Gus and Joe from this car and send them, with Bill and the six captured gangsters, around to the place we always take them to. I suppose they are blindfolded?"

"Yes, for the last twenty miles," I told him, for that had been the only stop of the journey, when we had detoured from the Sawmill River Parkway into a lonely road, where we waited with the two cars until the six gangsters were blindfolded and screened by curtains from my curious eyes.

But I knew the blindfolded men would never be able to recognize this locality again, even if they ever regained their liberty, which I doubted.

Masked Entrance

Just in the rear of my father's hideaway, and fronting on the next street, was a large Chinese restaurant and Chinese food supply store. It was closed to trade at night, but a small night force was always on duty.

The proprietor of this enterprise was one of my father's most trusted henchmen. Whenever it was necessary for bound prisoners to be brought to the hideaway, a car rolled into the Chinese factory, the doors closed upon it, and then it was lowered by elevator to the basement below and from there taken to the secret prison rooms under the hideaway.

"Then," my father went on, "I will bring all the rest of you into the apartment house which faces on this street, our camouflaged entrance."

I was familiar with the modest three-story apartment, with a garden in the back which adjoined the gardens of the three houses which formed the hideaway.

Underground Passage.

Although only a few trusted workmen of my father knew it, this house was connected, by way of a secret door through its basement, with a passage under the gardens which led into the basements of the hideaway.

"You will be able to get rid of your New Englander and the state trooper very soon, won't you?" my father asked.

"I fancy they'll be anxious to get away," I said. "They do not get to New York very often. But we ought to pay their expenses for the night in the city and their return journey."

"Of course," my father said. "Just tell me, what you think they ought to have—not now, but a little later. Now come back to the car, and I'll arrange for everything."

Q. Is it ever desirable to have a child play a musical instrument before guests?

A. As a rule, no; but if the guests are appreciative and the child co-operative and willing, this procedure might encourage him in his practice. If, however, he is unduly embarrassed or unduly set up or the guests are bored, the effect is bad.

Murder On the Avenue

By Carolyn Wells

(Copyright, 1942.)

CHAPTER XVIII

"That may be, but there's no way to prove it. Then I take it, Haynes was more in love with the lady than you were."

"I was not in love with her at all. Her too desperate flirtations disgusted me."

"Now, let me get this program right. We are granting that Mr. McCleod went up to his father's apartment as his sister says, and after that, you four young men were more or less with his wife in the coat room, and we are trying to find which of the four is responsible for the death of the lady."

"Right."

"You went with her from the elevator to the coat room, and after a short scene, she told you to run away, lest someone come in and see you two together. And she said it might be her husband. Now, where did you go?"

"Right across the hall from the coat room, there is a little writing room. I went in there and stayed to think things over. I wanted to go home, but I didn't think it right to go without saying good night to her, and I just sat there and smoked for a while. The door was wide open and I saw all the crowd milling about. I saw all the fellows go in and out of the coat room, and a few girls too."

"What did you notice of the ones we are most interested in? The ones who were with you at the police inquiry, when you were arrested?"

"I saw Murray and Martin Delevan go into the coat room. I didn't see Van go in, but I saw him in the hall once or twice. Well, anyhow. I decided to go in the room, say good night to Alma whether anyone was with her or not, and then go home. I went in, and she was alone, and she began her vamping me again, and she was lying on the chaise lounge, and she put her arms round my neck and drew me down to her, and that must be when I grasped at the back of the couch—the frame is chromium—and I probably left finger-prints. And then I heard someone at the door, and I unclasped her arms, and I'm afraid I jerked myself away from her, and said, 'Good night, Alma,' and fled. Alma was used to luring men, and usually, I think they were glad to be lured. One of her admirers, for some reason lost his head and—perhaps to prevent her screaming—he put the big pillow over her face, and held it down longer than he meant to. I don't believe he meant to kill her—but when Alma gets in a tantrum she screams."

"And it may have been Haynes?"

"Yes, it may have been. I seemed to think it was his voice that said, 'Are you here, Alma?' But I am not positive. It was Van's voice or one greatly like it."

"Where did you go, then?"

"I had my hat and coat and I went downstairs, intending to go right home. But there was some fun going on in the bar, and they called me to come in. The butler took my things and I went in. So I was still there when Doris Day gave the alarm."

"Now, if that was Haynes who came into the coat room as you went out by the other door, and if he did have a stormy session with Mrs. McCleod, would he have had the opportunity to kill her with the pillow, unseen? Weren't there other people coming for their coats, or other girls coming in?"

"There wouldn't have been such a chance, except that just then that stunt was on down in the bar. It was a well-known impersonator who was doing his stuff. He's a night club star. So, as soon as it became known that he was down there, everybody upstairs went down to see him."

"Was Mr. Haynes down there?"

"I saw him there after a while. But I don't know how long it was after I came down, that he came down. The actor was claiming all our attention. It was fully half an hour after I came down that I saw Haynes."

"Well, this is sure," said Stone, after a pause. "Haynes went into the room where Alma was after you had left her there alive."

"Yes—if that was his voice I heard. I couldn't swear to it; but I knew it more from the way he pronounced her name. We all say it Ahlma. But Van says it like the first syllable of Albert, Al-ma. And whoever came in that door, pronounced her name that way."

"Mr. Herrick, that sounds to me like proof. But I'm sorry to say, I fear the authorities will not accept it as such. Another thing that bothers me is that your memories of people coming and going, beside being somewhat vague, have no timing by the clock. I suppose you do not know the exact time or even approximate time that any of these men went in or out?"

"No, I don't."

"Do you remember anybody, perhaps not of your own crowd, coming for his coat, as you sat in the writing room? He might give us the time."

"'Fraid I can't be very definite. I remember seeing two or three of the older men, Mr. McCleod's friends, but they mostly stayed in the hall, looking over the balcony rail at the dancers below. And, too, I doubt they could fix the time."

"Well, I'll do what I can, if anything, to learn from other witnesses. The servants might help?"

"Dickson, the valet, was around off and on. He'll probably know something. And Foo Chow, the butler, was upstairs occasionally. Yes, they may be helpful. But if you get a complete time-table, how will it name the murderer for you?"

"There will have to be sidelights of evidence. And I must be going now, I want to talk with Mr. McCleod."

"Is McCleod an affable sort?" Fleming Stone asked.

"Perhaps that isn't just the word," Herrick replied, "but he is wise and just. And if he thinks you can discover Alma's murderer, he will be more than glad to see you. I think he is pretty sure I am the villian; for he is impressed by the finding of my fingerprints, and I know he considers that decisive evidence."

"You don't want me to tell him, how you were snared by his wife?"

"He wouldn't believe it, and if he did he'd be after me with a shotgun. Better not allude to Alma's overtures."

"I'll see you soon again; and, oh, by the way, here are a couple of letters Mr. Bliss asked me to hand you. He says he can't see you until evening."

"Thank you. Oh, I say! Here's a letter from Michigan! Do wait a minute—he may be dead!"

"Who may?"

"Why, my old uncle—and, I say! He is dead!"

"Is it going to break you all up?"

"Not emotionally, I haven't seen him for years. He's my great uncle. And here's a copy of his will! But—what's it to me?"

Brand threw the legal looking paper aside, and looked again at the envelope it came in.

"Clarence knew!" he exclaimed. "Bliss knew by the postmark what this letter probably meant. He must be wild to know what it's about!"

"Remarkable man, your partner," Stone said, already deeply engrossed in the latter.

"He's all of that," Brand returned. "Well, has old Uncle Jason cut me off with or without the shilling?"

"Neither. Can you stand a splash of good news?"

"Only one thing can be good news for me—my walking papers from this place!"

"And those, my boy, I hope to give you. . . . I suppose these old fashioned freak wills went out with side-whiskers, but your relative from Ebbitt's Corners has given us a most splendid specimen!"

"I prophesy you won't be here when this will is probated. How much do you know about your great uncle's heirs?"

"I know the family tree. My great Uncle Jason Webb made an enormous fortune in timber. His father began the business and Uncle Jason carried on. He had one sister, Lucy, who was my grandmother. She married a Brand, and Lucy's daughter, that is, my mother, married a Herrick. I am an only child. But Uncle Jason had a daughter, who is, I suppose his heiress. Expediently speaking, I ought to have played up to the old man, but he was cross and ill-natured, and he showed no desire to be friends with me. He can't say I ever asked him for any financial help."

"You'll perhaps get it, though. Listen here:

"'So far as I know, Brand Herrick, my great nephew, is my only living heir. Genevieve Wiley, if living, is my daughter's child, but my daughter, Jane, is dead, and I have no idea of the whereabouts of Genevieve, if, indeed she is alive. My daughter married John Wiley. She eloped with him, and thereby forfeited all right or title to her home. I disowned her, and I will never willingly see John Wiley.

"'Now, here is my last will and testament. My nephew, Brand Herrick, lives in New York, and can be easily found. If he finds Genevieve Wiley, and marries her within three months of my death, he will inherit two million of my not-so-very-hard-earned dollars. If he cannot find the girl he is to receive one hundred thousand dollars and the rest of the money is to be paid to the herein mentioned board of trustees, to be used to improve Ebbitt's Corners, to change the name to Ebbittsville, and to erect suitable public buildings and schools. The details of this bequest will be forthcoming if, as and when it is admitted by Brand Herrick that he cannot find Geneviewe Wiley.

"'Should Brand Herrick learn positively that my granddaughter is dead, he will receive one hundred thousand dollars as aforesaid. I have no interest in the fortunes of my son-in-law, John Wiley.'

"There are other small bequests," Stone said, watching Brand carefully. "But that is all that concerns you. I am sure you will want legal advice, and I advise you to talk first to Mr. Chadwick. But perhaps you are not ready to talk about it at all. It is a strange will, from a present-day point of view, but it was drawn many years ago; and in those western states, then, freak wills were not uncommon. What about it?"

"I think you must realize, Mr. Stone, how bewildered I am over the matter. I can not face the condition of marrying a strange girl for the sake of a fortune. Nor do I believe I could find her. Nor do I know that I would be allowed to marry while awaiting my trial for murder, nor do I believe any decent girl would marry me. All these conditions must be considered, but I cannot see them turning in my favor. I want to engage you to look into the business, and I want Mr. Chadwick as my legal adviser, but—what's the use?"

Stone spoke slowly. "I'm going now. I shall stop at your office, and tell Bliss about this. Shall I?"

"Yes, please."

"And he and I will see you here this evening."

THEATERS

Spy Chase.

Comedians Bud Abbott and Lou Costello turn spy-chasers in their new musical comedy, "Rio Rita," at the Ohio. They are aided in their escapade by Kathryn Grayson and John Carroll who furnish the romantic appeal. Patricia Dane, Tom Conway, and Peter Whitney are among the spies routed in a free-for-all fight. Songs from the original stage musical by the same name and some swaying South American dances, introduced by Eros Volusia, a native Brazilian, embellish the film.

Jungle Life.

Rudyard Kipling's thrilling adventure classic, "Jungle Book," is brought to the Madison screen in Technicolor with Sabu in the role of Mowgli, a creature half-boy and half-wolf. Northern India during the last century furnishes the locale for the picture that deals with the exploits of a young boy raised by the wild animals of the jungle. The picture is filled with wild tropical life and the properties used are estimated at $150,000. "Fingers At the Window," with Lew Ayres, Laraine Day and Basil Rathbone is the co-feature.

Enemy Kidded.

"Ham" actors kid the Nazis in "To Be or Not To Be," the Carold Lombard-Jack Benny picture at the Park. The action takes place in Warsaw at the time of the Nazi invasion and the actors are compelled to forsake the doublet and hose of their Shakespearean roles to adopt the storm trooper's uniform in order to make a get-away. The two stars appear as the leading actors in the company and others in the cast are Lionel Atwill and Robert Stack "Sing Your Worries Away," with Bert Lahr shares the bill.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

The last ball of the 1941-42 bowling season rolled down the Colony lanes last night as the Colony singles and doubles tournament, which presented some of the best keglers in the state, came to a close.

It's been a very successful season, in spite of the fact that Mansfield's bowling ranks were sadly depleted by departure of keglers for the armed services.

Two special tournaments, and the marked increase in women's bowling, took up the slack.

"You know," says Colony manager Al Vogel "when I came here last fall I didn't know the first thing about bowling. And worse than that, I knew even less about bowlers.

"But I wasn't scared. I'd had the best training possible in business practice through years with one of the big chain store organizations, and I thought that all I needed to do was apply that business training to the job of running the Colony alleys, and all would be ducky.

"Brother, did I have my eyes opened. The business training helped, but not nearly so much as the help I got from two Mansfield bowlers—Art Hilborn and Pauline Shively.

"Whenever I ran into a snag in organization or operation of the various bowling leagues, and I ran into a lot of them last fall, I'd call Art Hilborn in and he'd straighten me out.

"And when I wanted to line up tournaments, like the Inter-City coming here next year, and the singles and doubles just ended, it was Hilborn who took over most of the work and smoothed the way.

"Regardless of the time of day or night, Art would come running to the alleys any time I needed help I honestly believe that guy would close down his business altogether, if necessary, to see that bowling prospered in Mansfield.

'We made an effort last fall to boost women's bowling knowing very well that the men's play would be cut down, and we worked and worked and worked trying to get a women's afternoon league started And got nowhere

"Then I turned the job over to Pauline Shively, and in no time at all there was the league rolling right along so well that we may even try two afternoon leagues next season

"Altogether," says Al, "the bowlers of Mansfield have been swell to me, coming in here as a stranger, and when I say that I want to thank them, I'm not just talking for the book, I really mean it."

A. A. Clubs Split Double Headers

(By Associated Press)

All American Association clubs—except Minneapolis and Toledo—traded victories in an all-double-header program yesterday

Minneapolis beat Toledo twice 2-1 and 7-2 Harry Kelley victimized the Mud Hens on a five hitter Van Lingle Mungo erstwhile major leaguer hurled a six-hitter to win the nightcap

Four blows were all the St Paul Saints could get off Bill Crouch as Columbus won the opener, 5-1. Vedie Himsl gave the Birds only four hits as St. Paul took the afterpiece, 3-0

Kansas City's Tommy Reis furled a three-hitter to beat Louisville 8-1 Bill Sayles of the Colonels shackled the Blues to four blows, and won 3-0

Milwaukee stemmed an Indianapolis rally to win the opener, 4-3, but Gabby Hartnett's boys fashioned their second win in the last 10 games by taking the nightcap, 8-1.

Golfers Re-routed By Army Of Gnats

ATLANTIC CITY — (AP) — The boys started out backwards today in the Professional Golfers association championships at the Sea View club.

Swarms of pesky gnats near wooded sections of the two-course layout forced officials to re-route the players in the first 18 holes of today's qualifying round so that the "back" nine holes came up first.

Thousands of programs and cards showing the yardage, par, etc., of the championship course were declared officially to be in error.

Vandy and Starr Aid Red Cause

Hold Cards To Eight Hits In Double Bill.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
(AP Sports Writer)

IF YOU'RE one of those skeptical citizens who figured the Cincinnati Reds were in for a rough summer because their pitching had gone to pot, you'd better get ready to change your outlook, which is exactly what the Reds are doing.

* * *

With seventh place in the National league staring them in the face, the Reds called on Johnny Vander Meer and Ray Starr for a bit of hurling against the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday and what that pair did to the pre-season favorites was enough to make future opponents shudder.

Vander Meer tossed a five-hitter in the opening game and singled in the deciding run for a 3-2 decision Then Starr blanked the Red Birds on three hits for a 2-0 win in the nightcap

The double triumph knocked the Cards out of second place and hoisted Cincinnati into the thick of a battle royal that now finds five teams clustered within three games of the runner-up spot. The Reds are in sixth place

The upset at St. Louis wasn't the only surprise of yesterday's major league program.

The New York Yankees lost a 9-8 verdict to the Washington Senators but added half a game to their American league lead because the St. Louis Browns swept a doubleheader from the second-place Cleveland Indians by scores of 3 to 2 and 4 to 1.

* * *

The Boston Red Sox finally beat the Philadelphia Athletics, after dropping the first game of the afternoon, but slipped into fourth place in the American league as the Detroit Tigers whipped the Chicago White Sox twice and took over third place

The Boston Braves divided their bargain with the Philadelphia Phils The Phils won the first game 3-2 in 11 innings, Boston the second 6-3. The Chicago Cubs surprised everybody, including themselves, by pinning a double defeat on the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-5 and 11-4.

The Detroit Tigers collected a total of 25 hits in crushing the White Sox, 6-2 and 14-0 Rudy York tied an American league record by scoring five runs in as many times at bat.

Manager Joe Cronin returned to the Red Sox lineup and drove in two runs, one a homer, as Boston downed the Athletics, 6-5, in the second game after losing the first by the same score

While all that was going on, the Brooklyn Dodgers—apparently tired of losing at the Polo grounds—handed the New York Giants their first shutout of the year, 6-0, to salvage the final game of the series and snap a three-game losing streak

Dean Pitches One Inning

Satchel Paige and Monarchs Win Game.

CHICAGO —(AP)— Dizzy Dean still has plenty of crowd appeal and enough strength left in his officially retired right arm to sign at least a couple hundred autographs and pitch one inning of ball

Diz returned to Wrigley Field as manager of an All-Star team yesterday, opening the game on the mound against Satchel Paige and the Kansas City Monarchs The former Cub and Cardinal hurler fired over some curves and several whiskered fast balls to set down the first three batters to face him without a hit Then he turned the chores over to John Grodzicki of Fort Knox Ky., former Columbus pitcher in the American Association

* * *

Dean spent the rest of the game in the coaching boxes while the Monarchs belted out a 8-1 decision. But Ol' Diz got most of the plaudits from the 29,775 fans.

* * *

Bob Feller, former Cleveland speedballer who was to take over for Dean sent a telegram announcing that the Navy's Bureau of Personnel ordered his immediate return to Newport, R I, for active duty.

War Footing For Baseball Studied

CHICAGO—(AP)—A further war footing for baseball in a movement towards whole-hearted cooperation with government requests was foreseen today at a scheduled session of the game's advisory council

The group—Commissioner K. M. Landis and Will Harridge and Ford Frick, presidents of the American and National Leagues, respectively, met to study current war problems and their effect on baseball.

One pressing matter up for consideration included the effect of the ban on eastern night baseball on the all-star game in New York July 6 They also were to consider a government request that different times for daily games be observed to relief traffic congestion.

TWO EX-CHAMPIONS FIGHT AT PITTSBURGH

PITTSBURGH —(INS)— Pittsburgh's first outdoor show of the season, featuring two ex-champions, was expected today to attract close to 15,000 customers into the Forbes field arena tonight if the weather is right.

Fritzie Zivic, of Pittsburgh, former welterweight champion, and Lew Jenkins, of Sweetwater, Tex., who ruled the lightweight roost for a while, headed the five-bout card in a re-match.

Indian Fans Aid War Funds

Proceeds of Today's Game Help Army and Navy.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Everyone who headed for League park today—players, umpires, sports writers, firemen and club owners as well as the fans—did the pitching, with the army and navy relief funds on the receiving end for every cent.

It was a regularly scheduled game between the Indians and the White Sox, with a 4:30 p. m. starting time. The town's civic organizations were pulling for a sell-out of the 30,000 seats in one of the American League's eight service games.

Southpaw Chubby Dean, trying for his fourth straight win, and the Sox' bespectacled Bill Dietrich were the pitching choices.

The Indians considered themselves the favorites over the tail-end Chicagoans, but the Tribe still had a hangover from losing a three-game series to the St. Louis Browns in less than 24 hours over the week-end.

* * *

Yesterday's double defeat, 3 to 2 and 4 to 1, dropped the Redskins to two and one-half games behind the loop-leading Yankees.

Fielding errors and lack of timely hits ruined both contests for Cleveland.

In the first game, Al Smith outpitched Elden Auker, and had a 2 to 0 lead going into the fifth. But in that inning, two errors by Ken Keltner on successive plays let Vern Stephens and Bob Swift score, and in the next inning Stephens' single drove in George McQuinn, who had beat out a bunt, with the deciding run

Denny Galehouse, a former Cleveland hurler, gained a victory over Al Milnar in the second. Errors again played their part. Three singles gave Cleveland a one-run lead in the first, but the Browns tied it in the second when Chet Laabs tripled and scored as Manager Lou Boudreau fumbled Stephens' grounder, then threw wild to first.

The Browns tallied twice in the fifth to put the game on ice. Stephens singled and scored when Milnar fielded Rick Ferrell's bunt and threw it into right field. Galehouse's single then brought in Ferrell.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The twice-postponed Lou Nova-Lee Savold heavyweight scrap comes up again tonight, weather permitting, with each fighter forecasting a victory that may lead to a shot at Joe Louis and the top title of the boxing world.

Nova, starting a comeback eight months after being flattened by Louis, was about an 8-5 favorite with the betting boys. But Savold, the cocky Des Moines, Ia., lad with an impressive record behind him for the past year, remained a good outside choice to upset the ex-Yogi man from California.

Providents Lose Three

Edged In Two Close Games Over Week-End.

Mansfield's state champion Provident Loan girl softballers are recuperating today from a sorry week-end road trip which resulted in three defeats.

* * *

They were edged Saturday night at Delaware by the Wilks Meats 6-5, and then dropped a double header at Fort Hayes in Columbus Sunday to the J. & K. shoes 2-0 and 11-1.

* * *

Alice Iceman, young high school pitcher from New London, turned in a neat mound stint for the Providents Saturday night, limiting the Wilks Meats to five hits, but they were bunched for five runs in the fourth Mansfield came back to tie the score in the fifth, but the Meats added another marker in their half of the same inning. Triples by Harmon, Fusyh and Stone beat the Providents.

* * *

Fran Knapp and Sellan hooked up in a hurling duel in the first game of Sunday's double header, each allowing only three hits, but four bases on balls issued to the Shoes led to the Mansfield loss.

* * *

Iceman, pitching her second game in two days, was hit freely by the Shoes in the second game, and was tagged for seven runs in the first two frames.

MEET NEARS END

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Beulah Park's spring race meeting swung into its final week of activity today with an eight race card. Some 8,000 fans turned out at the Grove City oval to see Best Seller, the odds-on choice, romp home to victory in the $2500 added Governor's handicap Saturday.

Auditors Edge Stars 2-0 In Hurling Duel

Rain Fails To Keep Crowd Away, "Smokes For Soldiers" Benefit

IN ONE of the best softball games staged on a Mansfield diamond in recent years, the Ferguson State Auditors of Columbus yesterday edged the Mansfield All-Stars 2-0 at Liberty Park in a benefit tilt for cigarets for Mansfield soldiers.

And in spite of a drizzling, misty rain falling at game time, a fair-sized crowd turned out for the game, and opened its pocketbook for the "smokes for soldiers" fund.

Good weather undoubtedly would have tripled the crowd.

As it was, the collection amounted to $48.32, and included a five dollar check from State Auditor Joe Ferguson, who was on the receiving end of the first-ball battery, Mayor Bill Locke doing the chucking.

* * *

Big Diz Kirkendall, who held the All-Stars to one hit in nine innings last year, was touched for a hit in five, while fanning eight batters yesterday. George Hummel, intending to sacrifice after Harry Ross led off with a walk in the second inning, laid down a perfect bunt along the first base line and beat it out for a clean hit.

"Fireballer" Gerber took over the mound chores for the Auditors in the sixth, and fanned nine batters in four frames. But Bob Boyd spoiled his no-hit effort when he led off with a clean single to right in the ninth.

Aid Geiger hurled nearly as good a game as his more famous mound rivals, and had the Auditors completely stopped after the third inning. It was raining out where Aid lives on Glessner avenue, and Geiger, believing there would be no game, was summoned to the park just in time for the game. It took him three innings to get warmed up right.

* * *

The Auditors filled the sacks in the first inning on two walks and a single, but Geiger turned them back without a run. An error led to their first run in the second inning, but there was nothing flukey about their second marker in the third, scored on doubles by Moore and Hayes.

Lena Aston had charge of the collection, and reported $18.32 left for the "smokes for soldiers" fund after the Auditors' guarantee of $35 had been paid.

Helping her in passing the hat were Barbara Lehman, Helen Beeber, Joan Ross, Kate Ross and Elizabeth Mahalski, while Doris Carver and Mildred Keiser helped check the receipts.

Byers Blanks Zanesville 2-0

Ex-Brave Allows Two Hits, Fans Nine.

DAYTON—(AP)—On the wings of a pair of victories, the Canton Terriers soared right out of the Mid-Atlantic league basement into fourth position today.

Big innings and good mound work paved for a double triumph over the Dayton Ducks yesterday, 5 to 1 and 6 to 2 Lefty Larry Bridges gave up five hits in the opener, when the Pups had a four-run fourth inning, and Mel Parnell and Gene Jones hurled four-hit ball in the finale. The losses dropped Dayton to the cellar.

First-place Charleston blanked Zanesville 2-0 behind the two-hit hurling of Chuck Byers, who fanned nine and walked five.

National League Catches On, Builds Power Teams

By DILLON GRAHAM
(Wide World Sports Editor)

NEW YORK — The National league is becoming American league-minded. It's going in for power.

* * *

The Dodgers are the Yankees of the loop. They're definitely an attacking unit. And for the first time other senior circuit clubs are putting more emphasis on offensive than defense this season.

* * *

Even Bill McKechnie of Cincinnati, always a strong defense man, has changed over. He's sacrificed tight fielding for power hitting at third base and behind the bat and, so far as he can get hitters, in the outfield. Reports from Boston say the Braves have moved home plate quite a few feet nearer the outfield fences and that may account for the home run barrage they've been staging.

The first move Mel Ott made as New York manager was to line up heavy artillery for the Giants and now he has a bombing force that rivals the Dodgers in long-distance knocks. The Pirates also have added power. Only the Cardinals, apparently, have less strength than last year.

However, unless someone trips Durocher's Dandies before long it'll be a chase and not a race in the National league.

Seldom has a team gotten off to a faster start than the Dodgers. With the season less than six weeks old Brooklyn has a bigger lead than it had at any time last campaign. Dodger fans are talking about winning the flag by 10 games or more.

The Dodgers have gotten good pitching and they're leading the loop by plenty in batting and runs scored.

Durocher rates the Pirates as Brooklyn's chief rival. And what about those Pirates? It seems that only Babe Ruth and a few others tabbed the Pittsburghers as dangerous when the season opened

They're going along pretty well with a young outfielder playing third base, a fair second baseman handling short and a couple of rookies in the outer gardens. Maybe they'll hold up and maybe they won't. Skipper Frankie Frisch has been getting good pitching, with his twirlers lasting for more complete games than any other staff in the league.

However, the Pittsburgh personnel is largely made up of fellows other clubs were willing to let go for one reason or another.

They got Pete Coscarart, who's playing short; Outfielder Jim Wasdel, Pitcher Luke Hamlin and Catcher Babe Phelps from the Dodgers in a 4-for-1 trade. Stu Martin, infielder, came from the Cards. Boston and Cincinnati passed Outfielder Vince DiMaggio before he reached Pittsburgh. Pitcher Ken Jungles couldn't make the grade with Cleveland. Pitcher John Lanning was with the Braves and Pitcher Henry Gornicki had a trial with the Cardinals. Catcher Al Lopez and First Baseman Elbie Fletcher came from the Braves.

Frisch has moulded this talent, with youngsters the club bought, into a smoothly working unit. The younger brigade includes Infielders Alf Anderson bought from Atlanta at a good price, and Frankie Gustine, grabbed from a small Southern loop; Bob Elliott and Maurice Van Robays, bought from Montreal, and Johnny Barrett, a fleet outfielder from Hollywood.

MARKET STARTS WEEK WITH FEW STOCKS GAINING

Analysts Study Report Showing Steel Scrap Supply To Be Meeting Needs.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Local stocks generally shifted in eighths of a point in today's market transactions, with the majority on the plus side.

Forward movers at sluggish opening included General Electric, Woolworth and International Harvester. Lower were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, and Westinghouse.

Market analysists studied the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that current scrap supply was meeting production needs, with little complaint heard of actual shortages. Intensive collection programs, it was added, were continuing with good results.

Attention was given the summary of the National Lumber Manufacturers association, estimating that, during the week ended May 16, output of lumber fell 5 per cent under the preceding week and was 3 per cent less than in the corresponding 1941 period.

Shipments slackened from the week before but were 4 per cent above the same time last year. New orders increased over the previous week and the comparable week a year ago.

Army Ship Hits Obstruction While Approaching Landing Field.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Six army flyers, including two lieutenant-colonels, were dead today after their plane crashed into an "obstruction" while approaching a landing field at Houlton, Me., on a routine flight.

Those killed were Lieut. Cols. Louis S. Gumbel, Washington, D. C., and C. A. Wright, Clinton, Ia.; Lieut. J. D. Franciscus, Clayton, O.; Lieut. Gilbert M. Herback, Philadelphia; Second Lieut. E. R. Wilkinson (no address), and an unidentified non-commissioned officer.

The war department said that the plane crashed in a mountain area late yesterday approaching the airport and that all the bodies were recovered.

TROUBLE BREWS

Albanian Guerrillas Rising Up Against Italian Rule.

ISTANBUL — (Delayed) — (AP) —Stories of pitched battles with guerillas, the assassination of the Tirana police chief and numerous new restrictive decrees published in the official Italian newspaper Tomoro at Tirani indicated today an intensified surge of Albanian resistance to Italian rule.

The Albanian police chief, Ali Petchi, who was appointed by the Italians, was killed by three students who escaped, the newspaper said. They left a note beside his body saying "all who betray the fatherland will receive the same treatment."

The tiny Balkan country of King Zog, who now is in exile in London, was seized by the Italians shortly before the outbreak of the war.

NEW RAIDS

LONDON — (UP) — Royal Air Force planes swept through a haze over the Dover straits today, bound for new raids in occupied France.

A strong force of Spitfire fighters was visible below low hanging clouds, headed toward Boulogne, and the drone from the motors of another strong contingent flying above the clouds could be heard along the southeast coast. Some Spitfires returned a half-hour later from the Calais area.

The RAF made a second sweep over northern France early this afternoon.

The air and home security ministries announced some enemy activity in coastal districts of southern England during the night.

TOLL IN FLOOD CLIMBS TO 30

Lackawaxen River Rages Through 17 Counties In Pennsylvania.

waters leaped over their banks and engulfed industries which lined the banks of the various rivers.

The Birdsall Brothers plant and the Banner Slipper company were virtually destroyed by the rampaging Lackawaxen. Both mills had been working on government orders.

The raging waters twisted railroad lines like pretzels and hindered the shipment of materials in and out of the district. Tank cars, bearing much-needed gasoline, were unable to get through in many spots while long hours of delay was the rule throughout the vicinity. But today both the Pennsylvania and the Reading railroads reported service back to normal

The Hudson Coal company at Scranton had five of its seven main operations in the upper Lackawanna valley flooded and the waters also swept into the power houses, making it necessary to fix this machinery before being able to pump the mines dry again.

Although debris was piled high along the banks of the rivers, and in some cases had even been washed into factories and mills, most of the companies involved immediately put extra crews to work and expected to get back to normal production schedules in the near future.

Shattered buildings, beds, tables, stoves and all manner of furniture dotted the Honesdale section as the flood waters receded.

"It looked as if someone had picked up every bit of the landscape and redistributed it," declared Dr. A. C. Voight, a local physician.

In all, 17 counties felt the blow of the floods which left their victims strung out over an area from the northeastern part of the state to Philadelphia. Some of the victims had tied themselves to trees to prevent their being washed away by the overwhelming waters.

One old lady, a survivor of the great Johnstown flood, died of shock when she found the home in which she was visiting at Williamsport was partly inundated and she was forced to climb up on the roof. In the Johnstown debacle she was rescued after spending three days on the roof of a shed.

Red Cross and other emergency aid crews distributed food to the homeless and the state health department sent hundreds of pounds of lime to stricken areas to prevent disease.

Pennsylvania motor police and a platoon of the state's reserve defense corps took over the Honesdale - Hawley section and kept outsiders away from the scene.

Seventeen bodies were reported in Wayne county and 10 other persons were still missing. Damage in Honesdale, White Mills and Hawley was estimated at from $1,500,000 to $2,000,000. Hundreds of WPA workers have begun the task of clearing tons of debris from the main streets of Honesdale and Hawley, where water ran six feet deep in the business sections.

Police Own Use Of Sugar, Bailey Tells Consumers

prescribed allotments will only be penalizing themselves since a time may come when they have no sugar and will not be permitted to purchase any."

Bailey also issued a warning concerning lost war ration books. In the event a book is lost, a person may make application to his local rationing board for a new one, but it cannot be issued to him until two months after the date of application.

Numerous inquiries have been received as to the status of churches, lodges, clubs and other private organizations which occasionally serve meals, hold banquets, or give benefit dinners.

Such organizations, Bailey said, may not register as institutional users unless they maintain an establishment for the regular preparation and service of meals, and in order to qualify the organization must serve at least four meals a week. Sugar for meal services of those organizations which cannot qualify as institutional users may be obtained through contributions by consumers.

BURMA CAN AND MUST BE TAKEN

That's Stilwell's Assertion Upon Reaching India Following Defeat.

men," said Stilwell, who is Chiang's chief of staff and commander-in-chief of American forces in Burma, India and China.

"If we go back properly proportioned and properly equipped we can throw them out."

The story of the Burma battle, as Stilwell put it, was one of outnumbered forces giving the best they had against a foe with more equipment as well as more men. Still, he thought, the scales could have been tipped with "just a little more strength."

He said the Japanese were tough, well-trained, well-equipped and used about 40,000 or 50,000 combat troops who didn't care whether they survived or not.

"When you're fighting such an outfit," he added, "you need something more than a piece-meal, ragtail, bob-tail affair."

One of the things that hurt worst was the Japanese air superiority.

"They used to send over 40 to 50 planes daily and we couldn't retaliate because we didn't even have an anti-aircraft gun," he said.

"The Chinese soldier is a damned good soldier when properly led," Stilwell asserted. "There are a hell of a lot of troops in China and I think a lot can be done with them."

He said the Flying Tiegrs of the American volunteer group, still in China, would be strengthened considerably in men and equipment and inducted into the U. S. air force July 4 as a pursuit group.

As for India, Stilwell thinks rains coming soon will hamper any Japanese try at an overland thrust, not only because of difficulties in transport but also because of malaria and other diseases.

In his view, the rains should halt the enemy on land until the dry season in November.

Stilwell looked remarkably fit after the 20-day ordeal. Nineteen Burmese nurses were in the group of 104 that made the trip. These included Americans, Britons, Burmese, Chinese, Indians and Anglo-Indians.
